1.0 PREAMBLE

1.1 Introduction

Zimbabwe adopted various empowerment measures such as the indigenization policy to address previous economic imbalances. This move has empowered indigenous people to become active participants in economic development. The Business studies syllabus therefore intends to sustainably consolidate government efforts through developing learners' skills in decision making, problem solving, quantification and management of information, effective communication, leadership, resource management and enterprising. The syllabus will enable future entrepreneurs to adapt to dynamic economic, political and cultural environments through the use of acquired knowledge, competencies and skills, thus promoting self-reliance, and sustainable socio-economic development.

The Business Studies syllabus is a two – year learning area covering Forms 5 and 6.

1.2 Rationale

The dynamic business environment in Zimbabwe and beyond demands enterprisers with a practical approach to business. Thus the study of Business Studies equips learners with practical business skills such as: Decision making, Problem solving, Creativity and innovation, Communication, Leadership, Self-management and Team working. This will empower learners to operate successful businesses in the ever-changing socio-economic, cultural, political and technological environments. Business studies promotes economic empowerment, social equity and employment creation for the enhancement of self-reliance and economic growth.

1.3 Summary of Content

This syllabus covers theory and practical activities for the learners in Business Studies in areas such as business environmental analysis, human resources management, operations management, finance and accounting management, business communication, Information Communication Technology (ICT), project management and decision making.

1.4 Methodology and Time Allocation

1.4.1 Methodology

The need to impart skills such as, enterprising, leadership, decision making, communication, team working and problem solving, should influence the choice of teaching and learning methods in Business Studies. Therefore, the syllabus encourages learner-centred methods and approaches. Learners are encouraged to participate in projects and field trips which should allow them to acquire business skills and exposure.

The following are suggested teaching and learning methods:-

- Demonstrations
- Case studies
- Educational tours
- Research
- School on the shop-floor
- Group work
- Role play
- Seminars
- Presentations
- Debates
- E-Learning
- Project work

1.4.2 Time Allocation

To enable adequate coverage of the content, Form 5 and 6 learners should be allocated at least eight periods of at least thirty-five minutes per week.

Learners should have an educational tour, a seminar and a school on the shop-floor, at least once per term.

1.5 Assumptions

It is assumed that learners:

- have acquired commercial knowledge and business enterprise skills from previous studies.
- are constantly interacting with business activities at various levels.
- have a desire to create wealth for themselves through running their own businesses.
- desire to economically contribute to community and the nation at large
- have access to some means of production such as land
- are aware of the prevailing business environment
- interact with ICT tools.

1.6 CROSS CUTTING THEMES

The teaching and learning of Business Studies will encompass the following cross cutting themes:

- Information Communication Technology (ICT)
- Environmental issues
- Collaboration
- Disaster risk management
- Financial literacy
- Heritage
- Unhu/ubuntu /vumunhu

2.0 PRESENTATION OF SYLLABUS

The syllabus is presented as a single document catering for Forms 5 – 6.

2. 1 Syllabus Aims

This syllabus aims to enable learners to:

- participate in the business process within the economy, as an enterpriser and as an investor
- acquire enterprise skills and attitudes necessary to be successful in business
- develop business leadership, technical and vocational skills in socio-economic sphere through active participation in the economy
- create a new business project that can be turned into a sustainable business venture
- appreciate the economic, environmental, ethical, governmental, legal, social, technological and other issues associated with business activity

Objectives

By the end of the two-year learning period, learners should be able to:

- demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the concepts acquired in business studies
- evaluate environmental factors influencing business
